

WEIDMANN

Customer Confidentiality

Weidmann agrees that any information it obtains about Buyer (other than information that is issued by Buyer in its published, publicly available materials and on the public portions of its website) irrespective of whether such information is disclosed to Weidmann in oral, written or visual form, shall remain Confidential Information. Confidential Information includes without limitation the equipment, maintenance operations, testing and monitoring programs, and field condition and sampling data originating by the Buyer, and the test data, diagnostics, engineering inspections, reports, or products and services associated with laboratory testing and engineering services. Weidmann agrees that Confidential Information will only be used by Weidmann in connection with the Buyer's purchase and use of Products and Services, and in the generation and advancement of Weidmann or industry testing or engineering diagnostics. Weidmann agrees that it will maintain the Confidential Information in strict confidence and will not disclose or disseminate it to any third party without Buyer's expressed, prior written consent.
